This endorsement gives coverage against intervening adverse matters affecting title which are recorded or filed between the date of commitment and the recording of the documents.

UNDERWRITING GUIDELINES

The required notice of the day and time of closing should be carefully logged.

1. Title should automatically be brought down to a date and time as close as the recording system will allow to the closing time as will allow us the time to notify the parties to the transaction of any intervening adverse matters which our down date search discloses before the parties close the transaction.
2. We must promptly notify the parties before the closing of any such intervening matters.
3. We must be in receipt of the documents or proof of their recording within 48 hours of the closing. If the documents are not received or recorded within the 48 hours we have the right to raise exceptions as to any intervening matters recorded or filed subsequent to the 48 hours after closing.
4. You will note that we deny coverage if the conveyance to the insured does not warrant title. This is true for mortgages and land contracts as well as deeds. This exclusion may be waived if the law or the appropriate court order authorizing the conveyance prohibits the grantor from warranting title such as a Personal Representative or Trustee in Bankruptcy.
5. An indemnity executed by the seller may be required.

A charge is always made for the issuance of this endorsement.
